Barbara Marliene Scott is a Professor Emerita of Sociology, African & African American Studies, and Women's Studies at Northeastern Illinois University, and a long-time civic and political activist, anti-racist worker, and advocate for an equal and just world. She has won numerous awards and honors and her research and teaching interests and professional presentations span a variety of topics and interests. She is a past president of the Association of Black Sociologists, an international professional organization of sociologists of African descent, and currently acts as the organization's Executive Officer. She holds a PhD in sociology from Northwestern University, a MA in sociology, a MPh specializing in Community College Education, and a BA in sociology each from Roosevelt University. She is a strong advocate for curriculum transformation and the integration of race, class, gender and sexual orientation into the college curriculum and for more than 36 years, she has developed and taught courses in which she interjects intellectual vitality and justice-oriented perspectives. She still finds teaching exciting, challenging, and invigorating and thus, continues in retirement to teach part time. Committed to an understanding of marriage and family life from a sociological perspective, she continues to co-author Marriages and Families with a goal of helping students understand marriage, family and intimate relationships through the lens of sociology.

Mary Ann Schwartz is a Professor Emerita of Sociology and Women's Studies at Northeastern Illinois University, Chicago, Illinois and a community activist. She is Board Secretary for the Lincoln Park Village, a pioneering non-for-profit organization working to help people to live safely and well in their homes and neighborhoods as they grow older and to assist families in caring for their elderly members. She holds a PhD in sociology from Northwestern University, an MS in sociology from Illinois Institute of Technology, and a BA in sociology and history from Alverno College in Milwaukee. During her 35 years as an educator she has won numerous awards and honors and given many workshops on gender and family issues, the sociology of work, collective bargaining, and substance abuse prevention. She continues to co-author Marriages and Families with the goal of helping students to see the connections between their individual lives and the larger social forces that impact them.

This book was bought for a sociology class. I really enjoyed it it was very educational and a easy read. I recommend this book to all that are interested and sociology or marriages and family.

Book was said to be in good condition, but it has a cigarette burn in the back, barely held together with some sort of tape.

The book is great but the condition of the book was horrible. It looked as if someone spilt coffee all on the backend of the book, leaving the pages crunchy and hard to separate.

The Book was a rental and pretty badly worn out.

I haven't read the whole textbook yet but from the 7 ish chapters I have gotten through so far I think it's pretty well written. The structure is very helpful and it is very interesting. I think it would be a good selection even if you aren't taking a course on marriages and families. It has great insight into how we view marriage, sex, families etc and really draws your attention to new ideas and new ways to think about the same content that you already know.

Only reason I give this 3 Stars is due to Kindles lack of ability to quickly search for key terms and phrases when you're taking an open-book exam online. Wish this text was made to be used with Adobe Reader and hope makes some major upgrades to Kindle and the search-ability of texts.

It was a textbook for a class that I took. A bit of a slow read, but again- it's a text book. Definitely could have been worse! Helped me pass a bunch of tests, that's for sure!

Book came damaged.
