Pearl Zane Grey (1872 – 1939) was an American author best known for his popular adventure novels and stories that presented an idealized image of the American frontier. Riders of the Purple Sage (1912) was his bestselling book. In addition to the success of his printed works, they later had second lives and continuing influence when adapted as films and television productions. As of 2012, 112 films, two television episodes, and a television series, Dick Powell's Zane Grey Theater, had been made that were based loosely on his novels and short stories.

To be authored by Zane Grey, this story was not too exciting. It tells the slow story of a man tracking a wolf. It ambles on and on, quite blandly at times, but with some exciting scenes. Overall I felt let down by the story content. Zane Grey usually keeps up a good pace, keeps you wanting more. I didn't feel that this time. The real saving grace in this audio-book is that was read by James (The Virginian) Drury. That was the real treat! It was an okay offering by Zane Grey. If you love Zane Grey (and I do), you'll like this story.

James Drury (The Virginian) is the perfect narrator for this story. It makes the story come alive and makes you feel as if your sitting around the campfire experiencing it live. This was my first book to listen to by audio (only bought it because James Drury was narrating) and I know I will be listening to it over and over. Wonderful story.

Listen too a lot better.

Couldn't stop listening to it
